Beloved Citizen Receives Kiwanis Award

Col. Milton B. Ochs, 88-year-old veteran newspaper man of Tennessee, has been chosen by the Kiwanis Club of Chattanooga to receive their 1947 award as the person whose service to the community was considered outstanding. The presentation will be made Dec. 30, at a regular meeting of the club.

Colonel Ochs is widely known throughout the South in newspaper circles. He has long been active as a writer and editor and is vice-president of the Times Printing Company in Chattanooga. He is a brother of the late Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of The New York Times. In 1933, Colonel Ochs was elected president of Chattanooga's Half-Century Club, composed of persons living in Chattanooga fifty years or more.

The Kiwanis Club citation said: "When he took over the presidency of the Half-Century Club there was a membership of approximately 175. Today, under his guidance, there is a membership of 640 active and 203 have passed away.

"The members of the Half-Century Club all agree that he had endeared himself to more people during the last ten years than any individual in our city."

Colonel Ochs took an active interest in the National Guard in his youth and for more than ten years was captain of the Cadets, an artillery organization of the South. In World War I he was commissioned a captain and rose

U.S. Zionists Seek Ships And Arms

The Zionist Organization of America urged the United States government "to make available the necessary ships and facilities for the transportation of large numbers of Jews to Palestine for the resettlement of the Jewish state" and "to facilitate the acquisition by the Jewish Agency for Palestine of adequate military equipment for defense and security uses in Palestine."

These proposals, formulated at the recent meeting of the national ... of the or...

...from the United States Government, the Zionist Organization asserted that lack of adequate military equipment "would severely handicap the preservation of law and order in the event of continued disturbances inspired by intransigent Arab leaders."

"It is the foremost purpose of the Jewish people to establish and preserve peace and friendship with the neighboring nations of Palestine and Arab people," the group declared. "The Jewish state will live in accordance with the verse of the Bible inscribed upon the American Liberty Bell (Proclaim Liberty Throughout the Land, to All the Inhabitants Thereof)."

On the subject of American participation, the organization reported that it "will on its own responsibility and in cooperation with other agencies devote itself to promote widespread understanding and interest in the American world of agriculture, industry, investment and finance in the economic problems and opportunities in Palestine."

The group said its intention was "to encourage American business men to finance or establish essential industries in Palestine and to invest in existing or new Palestinian enterprises; to encourage growth of trade and commerce, increase imports and exports between the United States and Palestine; to present the opportunities for a maximum degree of participation by American youth of qualified training and experience in the upbuilding of Palestine and its productive life."

A resolution declared that "the political aims of the Zionist movement cannot be considered to have been achieved before there shall have been established in Palestine a Jewish state enjoying legal and physical security and recognition within the family of nations and until a large-scale emigration of Jews into Palestine and their resettlement shall have been accomplished."

The group voiced intention "to exert its influence to ensure the successful implementation of the United Nations resolution on Palestine for the organization of a Jewish state having the greatest measure of political stability and economic security."

The national education committee of the organization was directed to report at the next meeting of the administrative council on "the best ways and means of carrying on an educational cultural program."

The organization declared that "a special and adequate sum must be made available in the most ...

Mrs. Wise Was Noted Artist And Social Worker

Mrs. Louise Waterman Wise, wife of Dr. Stephen S. Wise, rabbi of the Free Synagogue of New York, died at her home, 91 Central Park West, of pneumonia after an illness of six days. At the bedside were her husband, to whom she was married in 1900; her son, James Waterman Wise, author and lecturer, and his wife; a daughter, Justice Justine Wise Polier, of Domestic Relations Court, and Justice Polier's husband, Shad Polier.

Louise Waterman Wise was devoted to two activities, her painting in the morning and social work in the afternoon. "I don't try to go in for the other side of life at all," she once said. "I just give all my time to those two things."

As a young woman, Mrs. Wise was a social worker at University Settlement. In 1914, she founded the Child Adoption Committee of the Free Synagogue. The committee, of which she remained president until her death, has placed more than 3,500 children in foster homes. She was founder and president of the Women's Division of the American Jewish Congress and founder and chairman of American Jewish Congress Refugee Houses, which sheltered more than 4,000 refugees of many lands and faiths. During World War II, she founded Congress Defense Houses, centers for service men of the countries of the United Nations.

Mrs. Wise began studying painting before her marriage. She went to the Art Students League and studied with Eugene ...Speicher, Robert Henri, George ... and O. W. Hayther... Her ...

...ings by Mrs. Wise were included in exhibitions at the Corcoran Gallery, in Washington, and at the Pennsylvania Academy, in Philadelphia. She had a one-man show in 1932 at the Cronyn & Lowndes gallery, 681 Fifth Avenue. Critics called her workshop series distinguished and praised other of her works.

Mrs. Wise participated in an international incident in 1937 involving the German government and the late Mayor F. H. LaGuardia. Speaking at a luncheon of the Women's Division of the American Jewish Congress, at which Mrs. Wise presided, Mr. LaGuardia suggested that the 1939 New York World's Fair have a "chamber of horrors" in which Adolf Hitler would be the principal exhibit.

Commenting on the luncheon, the Nazi-controlled press in Germany termed the women who attended it "women of the streets." Mrs. Wise sent a telegram to the State Department demanding that an apology be exacted from the German government. Cordell Hull, then Secretary of State, instructed the American Ambassador to Germany to make vigorous representations to the German government about the press remarks.

In 1946, Mrs. Wise declined appointment to honorary membership in the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire. The appointment was offered in appreciation of her management of the service men's centers which gave shelter to thousands of British fighting men. She declined the appointment because of her deep unhappiness over the conduct of the British Mandatory - government with respect to the Jewish people in Palestine."

Dr. Wise, who is president of the American Jewish Congress, had been refused a visa by the British government to visit Palestine as an American member of the Executive of the Jewish Agency for Palestine a week before the decoration was offered to her.

The Rev. Dr. Edward E. Klein of the synagogue and Dr. Sidney E. Goldstein and Dr. J. X. Cohen, associate rabbis, officiated at the funeral, attended by one thousand.

The eulogy was given by Dr. David Petegorsky, executive director of the American Jewish Congress, in which Mrs. Wise was president of the Women's Division.

Among those who attended were Deputy Mayor John J. Bennett; Henry Epstein, chairman of the National Community Relations Advisory Council; Mrs. Fiorello H. LaGuardia and Newbold Morris, former president of the New York City Council. Delegations of the American Jewish Congress ...

U.J.A. Sets Itself Enormous Task In Raising $250,000,000 For Overseas

The United Jewish Appeal assumed responsibility for raising a minimum of $250,000,000 toward meeting the needs of Jews overseas in 1948, the cost of which has been estimated as more than $400,000,000.

A resolution incorporating this "minimum" was adopted unanimously by 1,200 delegates to the national U. J. A. Conference at Atlantic City after more than five hours of discussion.

Once the new quota had been acclaimed, all delegates abandoned minor disputes and banded together in a determined and optimistic effort to reach a goal which is nearly double what the U. J. A. expected to have raised when 1947 contributions are all in.

The 1947 goal was $170,000,000, but comptrollers of the constituent agencies—United Palestine Appeal, Joint Distribution Committee and United Service for New Americans — do not expect to receive more than $152,000,000, and actual receipts may fall several million below that figure.

If the new quota — the largest ever attempted by any private fund-raising agency — is achieved, leaders of the three constituent agencies announced that it would be divided in the following manner:

U. P. A.	$146,250,000
J. D. C.	$ 88,750,000
U. S. N. A.	$ 15,000,000

Up to $250,000,000, contributions will be divided percentage-wise on that scale. "All sums above this goal," the resolution stipulated, "shall be devoted to the establishment of a Jewish state." U. P. A. alone had estimated its needs for security, immigration and resettlement in 1948 at $282,156,000.

The J. D. C. estimate for relief and rehabilitation of displaced persons and refugees was $98,547,000, and the U. S. N. A. had stated

Built Trolleys Years Ago

Leopold J. Wolf, one of the U.S.'s earliest developers of the now virtually extinct interurban trolley system, died at Cleveland, Ohio, at the age of 91. He retired from business four years ago, but remained a director of Gray's Drug Stores, which are represented in several cities in the United States.

Born in Cleveland, he went to work for his father, a dealer in hides, at the age of fourteen. His career as a promoter and builder of interurban lines began a decade later when he was living in Chicago. He became president of the Aurora, Elgin & Chicago Railroad, president of the Western Ohio Railroad and vice-president of the Cleveland South-western Railway. He also built a trolley line on Long Island.

Mr. Wolf never had a golf club in his hand until he was forty, but his enthusiasm for the game continued from that time throughout his life. He was the founder and first president of the Oakwood Club and the only honorary life member of the club. He played at least nine holes two or three times a week until two years ago.

Mr. Wolf's wife, Carrie, to whom he had been married for sixty-one years, died last summer. She was one of the founders of the Women's City Club and civic and club leader for many years.

Surviving are a son, James Wolf of New York, and three sisters, Mrs. Augusta Born, Mrs. Ida Janowitz and Miss Cora M. Wolf.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. H. Aptacker (nee Sarah Gold), 4556 St. Catherine Street West, a daughter, Heather Penny, at the Jewish General Hospital, on November 23; granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gold, Jeanne Mance Street; and of Mrs. H. Aptacker, of Brooklyn, N.Y., and the late Hyman Aptacker.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. [illegible], Jeanne Mance Avenue, a daughter, at the Jewish General Hospital, on November 23; granddaughter of Mrs. Molly Nobleman, Fulton Avenue; and of Mrs. Bluma Levin, Lajoie Avenue.

Woman Communist Leader Of Rumania Is Daughter Of Poor Rabbi

The history of Rumanian Communism and the name of Ana Pauker, Rumania's new Foreign Minister, are so closely associated that it is sometimes difficult to determine where her personal initiative ends and that of the party begins. For three decades "Tovarish Any," as the Rumanian comrades call her, has been making history underground and in the open in Balkan politics.

The first woman named to direct a nation's foreign policy, Mrs. Pauker has been described as a "woman of mystery," but there is nobody in Rumania who does not known her by name and who cannot recite from memory some episode of her vivid life.

Beloved of her followers and hated by her foes, her courage and unwavering attitude are admired by all. In the complicated machinery of Balkan politics Ana Pauker is a vital part that does [illegible] she is: the supporting pillar of the Communist party.

Taller than the average Continental woman, of generous proportions owing rather to a solid frame than good living, Mrs. Pauker carries her broad-featured head high. A jutting chin, broad cheek-bones, a generous mouth and large forehead provide the frame from which glisten steely, intelligent, dark gray eyes which change hue with her mood.

Born in Bucharest of humble Jewish parents—her father was a poor rabbi who found it difficult to make both ends meet—Ana wanted to become a doctor.

It was during her student days during the first world war that she became interested in socialism, reports the New York Herald Tribune. She was so absorbed by the new social teachings and financially in such dire straits that she gave up her medical studies and became a teacher to earn a living.

In 1918 she was arrested for circulating a leaflet urging world peace. Soon after, on December 13, 1918, she was heard from again leading a demonstration in the National Theater Square in Bucharest, which was dispersed by machine-gun fire at the order of General Alexandru Averescu, Prime Minister.

In 1922 she became a member of the central committee of the Rumanian Communist party, a job she has held without interruption for a quarter of a century. In 1924 Ion Bratianu's Liberal government outlawed the Communist party. Mrs. Pauker was sentenced to twenty years in prison, but was pardoned under a general amnesty. She went abroad for a few years then and was sentenced "in absentia" to ten years, which she never served.

She returned to Rumania in the '30s, and with other members of the Communist party organized anti-Fascist committees throughout the country. In 1936, Mrs. Pauker and several leading party members were arrested in a police raid in which she was wounded [illegible]

[illegible] en to the military prison at Craiova, in southwest Rumania, where, in 1936, she was tried, together with Gheorghe Gheorghiu-Dej, now Minister of Trade and Industry, by a military tribunal.

She refused to answer any questions, despite the use by the secret police of third-degree methods. She succeeded in maintaining her position, but it was a pyrrhic victory. She was sentenced to twenty-five years' imprisonment.

After the return of Bessarabia to the Russians in 1941 the Rumanian government assented to her exchange for three leading Rumanians who were caught by the Russians in Bessarabia, and so, a few weeks before Rumania declared war on the Soviet Union, she was again free.

Through the war Rumanians could hear her sharp voice broadcasting regularly over the Russian stations. The ghost that had haunted every Rumanian government since 1918 was present and active again.

After the coup d'etat which ousted Marshal Antonescu and brought Rumania out of the Axis camp, Mrs. Pauker returned to Bucharest. Her first job was to organize Rumanian women in the Federation of Democratic Women. Herself a Rumanian representative and a member of the World Council of Democratic Women, she now has charge of all Communist organization work in Rumania.

Ana Pauker today is one of the international leaders of the Communist party, ranking equally with Georgi Dimitrov, of Bulgaria, and Premier Marshall Tito of Yugoslavia, in the Balkan Communist hierarchy. Her international reputation automatically singled her out to be the leading Rumanian representative at the nine-country Communist meeting in Poland establishing the new Communist Information Bureau, the Cominform.

Despite her prominent position, Ana up to now has preferred to stay out of the limelight of official public life. She was reluctant to accept the post of Foreign Minister [illegible]

SAVE ELECTRICITY

Facts to date show that consumption of electricity has been somewhat reduced by modified rationing and voluntary savings. The Commission appreciates the effort of all consumers in this connection. But results are still short of being enough.

Electricity costs so little in this province that people have long been accustomed to using it lavishly. For example, your porch light left burning when not needed is wasting electricity. Ask yourself honestly: are you doing all you can to help relieve this situation?

Electricity is precious! Don't waste it! Save it!

MARRIAGES

WALFISH-YATES

The marriage of Rhoda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Yates, 5466 Grovehill Place, to Harold M. Walfish, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sigmund Walfish, 1925 Clinton Avenue, took place at Temple Emanu-El, on October 26, at half-past twelve o'clock, Dr. Harry J. Stern, Rabbi, officiating, assisted by Cantor Oliver Staeren. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white bridal satin gown, with a high portrait neckline, and net yoke; and long, pointed sleeves, moulded Alencon lace bodice, and full skirt, with bustle hipline, and inserts of Alencon lace, finishing in a train. A Mary Stuart-styled satin coronet caught her finger-tip tulle illusion veil, and she carried a white prayer-book, with orchids and bouvardia. Mrs. Herbert Steinberg, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a floor-length dress of rose-colored silk crepe, fashioned with a high neckline and cap sleeves, and a gold-shaded headdress. She had gold accessories, and carried a cascade bouquet of Talisman roses. Edward Walfish, cousin of the groom, was the best man. The ushers were: Jerry Yates, brother of the bride; and Sidney Gasco, Samuel Wise, Larry Walfish, Mortimer Walfish, Saul Abrahams, Harold Struser, and Irving Bregman. The altar was banked with gladioli and palms; and the aisles, with shepherd's staves, and satin ribbon. "Because" and "O, Promise Me" were sung. The reception was in the community hall, the tables being decorated with pom-poms, and the bride's table with two centrepieces of autumn flowers; and there was an arch of leaves and flowers at the entrance to the hall. Mrs. Yates, mother of the bride, wore a floor-length gown of deep turquoise-blue crepe, with long sleeves; and a draped velvet Burgundy-red and turquoise-blue hat, turban-styled; with corsage of American Beauty roses. Mrs. Walfish, mother of the groom, wore a floor-length gown of royal-blue, with a matching hat, and gold-colored accessories; and had a corsage of pink camellias. The bride and groom left on a motor trip to New York; Atlantic City, N.J.; Washington, D.C.; and Virginia Beach, Va., the bride wearing for travelling a Burgundy-red and grey striped suit, with Burgundy-red accessories. They will live at 5861 Cote St. Luc Road. Mr. and Mrs. Max Reisler, and Miss Rhoda Reisler, of Bronx, N.Y., were wedding guests.

The marriage of Leona Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Blumenthal, 580 Ocean Parkway, Brooklyn, N.Y., to Gerson Kaiserman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kaiserman, of Ste. Agathe, took place at the Riverside Plaza Hotel, in New York, on November 9, at eight o'clock, Cantor Kaiser officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a white satin gown, designed with a heart-shaped neckline, and long-pointed sleeves, tightly-fitted bodice, and a flared skirt, which draped into a four-yard train. She had a lace Dutch-style cap, with a finger-tip veil, and carried a white Bible, with white orchids. Miss Roslyn Gootzite was maid of honor, wearing aquamarine-blue satin, with a matching headdress, and carried a nosegay of roses. The bridesmaids were Misses Dorothy Goldstein, Terry Perlstein, Helene Lechner, and Leona Baldell, all of New York. Edward Ikeman, of Montreal, was best man. The cas[illegible] wore [illegible] and [illegible] satin, [illegible] and carried [illegible] roses. The bride's table held a four-tiered wedding cake. Mr. and Mrs. M. Lerner, of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Mr. and Mrs. M. Greenberg, of Montreal, grandparents of the bride and groom, walked down the aisle with them. Mrs. Lerner wore a fuchsia-shaded gown, with gold sequin embroidery, and a corsage of yellow roses. Mrs. Greenberg wore a black gown, with a corsage of yellow roses. Mrs. J. Pearson, aunt of the bride, wore a black strapless gown, with an orchid. The bride and groom left for Ellenville, N.Y., the former travelling in a black wool costume, with black alligator accessories, and white orchids, and an opossum coat. They will live in Ste. Agathe. Conn, son of Eli Conn, of Auburn, N.Y., and the late Mrs. Conn, took place at the Mount Royal Hotel, on November 30, at half-past six o'clock, Dr. Harry J. Stern, Rabbi, officiating, assisted by Cantor Oliver Staeren. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white satin gown, fashioned with a high round bertha collar, worked with seed-pearl beads; long, pointed wrist-length sleeves, and a draped bodice, with a dropped waistline. The skirt was draped in back into a long train, from a butterfly-bow. A tiara of pearl beads and rhinestones on silver lame held her veil of illusion tulle, and she carried a sheaf of white carnations, centred with white roses, with streamers of bouvardia. Mrs. Bernard H. Payton, of New Rochelle, N.Y., sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing silver grey satin, with matching accessories, and a sheaf of yellow roses. Maurice Schwartz, of Auburn, was best man; and the ushers were: Jordan Harvey Wexler, brother of the bride; and Herbert Victor, Jack Lazare, and Bertram Schwartz. JDC Finds, Marks Graves

To preserve the memory of the millions of Jewish men, women and children murdered in Nazi extermination camps and buried in a wilderness of mass graves, the Joint Distribution Committee, major American agency aiding distressed Jews abroad, is now carrying out a special project of finding and marking the graves of Jewish dead in Germany.

The task is as difficult as it is tragic, for the Nazis made every effort to erase the traces of their murders. The Graves Registration Department, under the direction of Dr. Abel Akobos, a Lithuanian Jew who himself survived two Nazi concentration camps, works tirelessly at investigations to find the graves — and the names — of the Jewish dead. Mass graves where as many as 1,000 Jewish dead are buried have been filled and cleared, the graves marked and made visible, and Jewish stars and monuments erected with funds provided through the United Jewish Appeal.

The Graves Registration Department is under the Committee's Religious Department in Germany, headed by Rabbi Solomon Shapiro, of the Bronx, New York. Rabbi Shapiro has issued a warning against individuals in the U. S. who claim to have discovered the graves of Jewish martyrs in Europe and who, for a fee, will make sure that such graves are cared for.

"The number of Jews buried in mass graves whose names have been discovered are tragically few," Rabbi Shapiro stated. "Only an agency with the staff, experience and organization as the JDC can track down such information. "Everything possible is being done to preserve the memory of those who perished," sas Rabbi Shapiro, "in order that the world will not forget their tragic fate and that American Jews who lost loved ones to the Nazis can be at peace in the knowledge that the graves will be marked and cared for. It is our hope that the Almighty will look upon the building of these memorials as 'Chesed Shed Emeth', a true and eternal deed."

Some 300 functional Jewish institutions, including child care organizations, medical agencies, welfare institutions and others, have been supported in France by the Joint Distribution Committee, last year. Special needs resulting from the war and from the influx of refugees from Eastern Europe into France have brought about the creation of large numbers of social agencies governing the most diversified fields of social welfare, most of which receive their chief support from the JDC.

U.S. ZIONISTS

days for the defense and security of Jewish Palestine."

Louis Lipsky, interim chairman of the American Jewish Conference, spoke at a Chanukah victory meeting of University Heights Zionist District 39 in the Concourse Plaza Hotel, the Bronx. He held that the present riots in Palestine were "threats to the peace of the world and therefore should receive the immediate consideration of the United Nations Security Council."

The World Confederation of General Zionists issued a plea for tools and machinery to be shipped to Palestine "to aid in the rapid absorption of immigrants into the new Jewish state."

Asked in Palestine whether Jews wanted United States forces there to help keep order after the British leave, a senior Jewish Agency official, who did not wish to be named, said emphatically that the Jews did not require foreign forces but needed arms, according to the New York Times.

"We think it is illogical," he said, "if the United Nations agrees to the establishment of a Jewish state and refuses it means to defend itself."

He said Jews have in Palestine more than 30,000 men who served in the last war in all branches of services. Among them are approximately 300 former Royal Air Force men including forty to fifty pilots.

A number of former members of the United States Air Forces also are there, he said. "Manpower is no problem," he added. "America should give us airplanes, not pilots. It is no secret that we are already making Sten submachine guns and mortars locally," he said, but declined further details on Jewish arms production.

About general possibilities, he said: "Don't forget that we have the only first rate group of scientists in the Middle East and we already have a considerable industry."

to the rank of colonel.

He was active in the promotion and building of the Hanging Gardens on Lookout Mountain, famous civil war battleground, and was largely instrumental in having his brother, Adolph S. Ochs, build the Julius and Bertha Ochs Memorial Temple in Chattanooga.

Colonel Ochs married Miss Fannie Van Dyke on April 26, 1893. They have three children, Colonel William Van Dyke Ochs, U.S. Army (retired); Adolph Shelby Ochs and Mrs. Margaret Elizabeth Ochs Palmer.

SEES VAST SUM

force in Palestine would make the Arab states think twice before attacking the Jewish state," he said.

"Many prominent Arabs have approached the Jews for the purpose of establishing a truce and promoting good-neighbor relations."

Among the major items in the Palestine budget for 1948, Mr. Kaplan said, are $27,500,000 for the establishment of new settlements; $25,000 for urban settlement; $28,000,000 for national organization and security, including extension of the home guards and the permanent Jewish militia, and $57,900,00 for the acquisition of land.

Mr. Kaplan said a four-year plan is being set up for the immigration of a total of 400,000 Jews during the period, which would "liquidate the problem of the Jewish refugees in Europe."

He advised the conference that he would approach the State Department, the Import and Export Bank and the International Bank for loans to make up the part of the $223,000,000 Palestine budget that is not included in the goal set for American Jews.

U. J. A.

a need for $13,664,000 with which to assist Jewish refugees coming into the United States.

The gap between U. J. A.'s new quota and the requirement of $400,000,000 will be spanned, it is hoped, through loans from the United States and through contributions from Jewish communities in South America and in other countries, such as Canada, South Africa, England and Mexico.

The U. J. A. agencies also have a current deficit of $65,000,000 with which to contend.

In introducing the resolution former Governor Herbert H. Lehman, who was one of the 130 Zionist leaders who drew it up, emphasized that the new Jewish state must be protected until its citizens can assume their own police powers under their own sovereignty.

Meanwhile, he said, the United States should provide arms with which a Jewish militia can defend the rights of the new state, as outlined in the United Nations' three-week-old decision to partition Palestine.

"I have always opposed and strongly protested all forms of terrorism," Mr. Lehman said, but if the Arabs do not accept the Jewish offer of "good will and friendship . . . the people of Palestine must be given the means to protect themselves."

In answer to a question concerning $28,000,000 earmarked by U. P. A. for security — primarily for Haganah, the Jewish voluntary defense force — Henry Montor, executive vice-chairman of U. P. A. said that "no organization of American Jews will be entitled to conduct any activity for Haganah without express approval by U. J. A." Mr. Montor added that $1,000,000 from the 1947 U. J. A. campaign would be immediately turned over to U. P. A. for Haganah.

Although much of the discussion on the resolution was delivered off the record, delegates admitted that there was some dissatisfaction from small towns over the failure of certain large communities to set their quotas for 1947.

Of the new national quota New York City representatives anticipated some reduction from the 35 per cent which has been their responsibility in recent years. Nonetheless, New York's share of the $250,000,000 was expected to be more than $80,000,000.

The New York quota for 1948 will be determined officially at a meeting in the Hotel Pennsylvania on Feb. 1. In 1946 the city narrowly missed its quota of $35,000,000. For 1947 there is no expectation of achieving the quota of $60,000,000, although New York Jews contributed more in 1947 than has ever been raised in the city for any fund.

The enormity of the task which the U. J. A. has shouldered was pointed up by the recollection that in 1939 the appeal's goal was only $25,000,000, one-tenth of the 1948 quota—and the latter falls $150,000,000 short of stated Jewish requirements overseas.

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancor
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an anchor."

Some time in November, prior to the annual dinner of the Canadian Federation For Polish Jews, at which Dr. Barnett R. Brickner, noted American Rabbi, was the speaker, the Review was interested to receive some publicity for the event which it did not publish due to the fact that it contained at least two misstatements which were apparent at first glance and therefore may have contained more. However, this material did get into Montreal daily newspapers which naturally accepted it on good faith, much to the embitterment of B. G. Sack, author of the "History Of The Jews In Canada."

Mr. Sack, being the author of the book, was greatly upset when he read under pictures of Rabbi Brickner that among the things the Rabbi is famous for is the editorship of "History Of The Jews In Canada," the author of which was left unmentioned. Mr. Sack wrote letters to the daily newspapers, stating that nobody edited his manuscript, he had never even met Rabbi Brickner, and that he challenged those responsible for such publicity to make a correction. As far as this column knows, the Canadian Federation For Polish Jews has been as quiet as a mouse and no public announcement was made to set Mr. Sack's mind at ease, aside from the balm contained in seeing his own letter printed in the papers.

The Review was surprised and mildly flattered to note that not only was Rabbi Brickner the editor of "History Of The Jews In Canada" but that he was also the founder of the Canadian Jewish Review. Rabbi Brickner has practically all of his fingers in all of the pies that make up the sweet-table so often referred to as "Jewish life", and is president of this, sponsor of that, sixth vice-president of something else to such an extent that he probably couldn't say for sure just what it is that he is active in all together at the moment. But it is highly unlikely that he forgot that he was once the first contributing editor of the Canadian Jewish Review and not the founder thereof, there being a considerable difference, considerable enough to impress the mind of the most forgetful over the longest period of the busiest years.

Because Rabbi Brickner has reached such a position since he left the pulpit of the Holy Blossom Synagogue in Toronto for the Euclid Avenue Temple in Cleveland that his communal achievements and adornments must look like a mail order catalogue at Christmas time, it is hard to resist the kind of flattery implicit in the fact that the Canadian Federation For Polish Jews selected his erstwhile connection with the Review to enhance his splendor and drawing power for their annual dinner. This is, indeed, the heady cup of fame filled to overflowing for this paper. However, due to the familiar compulsion of this column to bear witness to the truth at any cost, the statement of the above organization must be denied, even if a little belatedly and even if the denial is not in the daily papers, but just for the record.

This occurence is a most minor ripple in the communal life of Montreal Jewry but it may serve as a good object lesson. If Rabbi Brickner did not proclaim himself as the founder of the Canadian Jewish Review then who was it who made him that for publicity purposes? There are always some people around for whom the simple truth is never good enough. If it is overwhelming, they don't believe it and cut it down to meet their requirements of expectation. If it is too plain to suit them, they become window-dressers. Anything to change it, to embroider a theme.

When this method is applied to communal publicity, the effort to fill every seat comes before a cause, the glamour of the speaker overshadows the underlying purpose of his speech. Numbers, bigness, grandness, the distance from which the celebrity comes, the means of locomotion by which he travels are the outstanding part, the undertaking itself receding, somewhat in the manner of a bridegroom at a wedding. The method of the Canadian Federation For Polish Jews is an example to other organizations of what not to do.

Mr. Sack pointed a finger at this organization which will be remembered. The next time they want publicity it may get into the waste-basket or they may be questioned, if there is time for that, or they may get very little notice. Moreover, other Jewish organizations may suffer because of what one did. Relations with the newspapers, especially the dailies, should be strictly on the square, and no tricks. Any other policy is sensational and irresponsible and will militate against those who pursue it and the work they seek to benefit.

ONE BIG ASSET

CAN'T SHOW...

THIS asset is the Bank of Montreal family . . . 8,970 men and women who are working with the million and a half Canadians who bank at the B of M.

No amount in dollars can ever express the value of this asset. Yet, of its nearly two billion in resources, no asset of the Bank of Montreal is so productive as these people who daily serve their customers — just as B of M people before them have served on every business day since November 3rd, 1817.

Behind this asset is the accumulated experience of 130 years. Through five generations, the experience of the original staff of seven has multiplied as the B of M family has grown in strength and numbers.

Each member of this family is a distinct personality . . . together, nearly nine thousand of them make the B of M.

Tribute

"To the outstanding services of the men and women of our Staff, I would like once again to pay tribute," said B. C. Gardner in his general manager's report to B of M shareholders.

Pointing out that the volume of counter transactions handled by the Staff during the past year had surpassed all previous records and that the Bank's deposit accounts now exceeded more than 1,600,000, Mr. Gardner described the measures being taken to speed services to customers and to lighten the heavy burden on the Staff.

"We are," he said, "continuing to carry out further mechanization in connection with routine transactions and are adopting new and revised working methods to expedite business.

"We have a group of routine organization officers who visit branches periodically and assist Managers and Staff in improving routine methods.

"As an additional aid to staff training, we have recently established a school at Head Office and we hope to extend this form of instruction . . .

"The organization and arrangements relating to the development, the progress and the welfare of our Staff are under continuous and careful study, and I know of no feature of our business that has been given more care and consideration over the past year.

". . . to my immediate associates . . . and to the entire Staff I wish to express my sincere thanks for their loyalty and devotion and for their efforts in maintaining and improving the services which we render to our customers and to the community at large."
